Kristy Fercho, Head of Wells Fargo
Diverse Segments, Representation
& Inclusion

Wells Fargo is proud to be the presenting sponsor of the 2024 International Leadership Summit (ILS). This event seeks to prepare leaders for the challenges and opportunities over the horizon – to build awareness and understanding of the dynamics that will shape our future and transform our communities.

Events like ILS align with Wells Fargo's ongoing efforts to help close the wealth gap and support diverse communities. To that end, Wells Fargo and the T.D. Jakes Group announced a ten-year strategic partnership to drive economic vitality and inclusivity in communities across America. Over the next 10 years, the partnership between our organizations could result in up to $1 billion in capital and financing from Wells Fargo, as well as grants from the Wells Fargo Foundation, with the goal of revitalizing neighborhoods, fostering economic opportunity, and creating long-term change in communities most in need.

The work is already underway, and the results are exciting. Through Wells Fargo's support, the T.D. Jakes Foundation announced just this past month a philanthropic investment of $9 million in grants to 16 community-based organizations across the United States. Our organizations are also working with the largest Black-owned real estate developer in Miami to advance an affordable housing project and supporting the redevelopment of the former Fort McPherson Army base in Atlanta into a mixed-use, mixed-income community.

I'm passionate about the work we're doing and encouraged by the progress being made at Wells Fargo to address the wealth gap and advance diversity, equity, and inclusion for our colleagues, customers, and communities. I also believe deeply in the power of collaboration and know that, through shared focus and commitment, we have the potential to drive positive change together for years to come.

Sincerely,

Kristy W. Fercho
